Montclair State University
La Campana 1999

Upper Montclair, NJ 07043 Room 111 Student Center Annex (973) 655-4346

A Profile of a Changing Campus

The 1999 edition of La Campana centers on the changes Montclair State University has experienced over the past eighty years In this book, La Campana has preserved its memories. Throughout this book, the memories of days gone by will come to life as we contrast the early days of Montclair State College with the memories of today's graduates of Montclair State University. From Homecoming to Graduation, the 1999 edition of La Campana will profile both Yesterday and Tomorrow.

Organizations

Sponsored by the S.G.A., the clubs, organizations, and Greeks provide outlets and activities for bored and overworked students.

Sports

Determination and devotion, characteristics of an excellent student, also make for a superior athlete.

Student Life

The best four (or five) years of your life will only be as great as you make them. Party like it's 1999.

What will you rememember about MSU?

Through the years at Montclair State University, every student has had his or her share of unforgettable moments. Whether it's your involvement in an organization, the special person you met here, or just the everyday hassles of parking and dorm life, you've undoubtably gained something from Montclair State University that you will never forget. What comes to your mind when asked 'What will you remember about M.S.U.?'

Organizations

As freshmen, we were often told that there is a place for everyone at Montclair State. Whethere the group is politcally, soically, religiously, or professionally based, many of us have take part in the activities of at least one ogranization chartered on campus. Regardless of the type of organization it may have been, many of us found a source of experience, learning and fun in being a part of the organization of our choice.

Everything from Homecoming to the Harvest Ball, philanthropy projects to parties, concerts to carnival, are held because of the efforts of the student organizations found here. The members of these organizations give much of thier time, effort, and talents for the benefit of their fellow student.

In observance of the positive impact that these organizations and their members have on the campus, and of the benefits they offer to the individual students of Montclair State, La Campana offers this salute to our student organizatons.

NOW & THEN

The Student Government Association, Inc. of Montclair State University is a student-run parent corporation that includes within its structure various services that meet the needs of the student body on and off campus. This governing body, run by the students for the students, has a unique as well as diverse make-up of organizations that range from Class I to Class IV status. S.G.A. organizational services include the Montclair State University Emergency Medical Squad, Drop-In Center (peer counseling), and La Campana (the school yearbook). S.G.A. in-office services include the discount selling of Garden State Parkway Tokens, regular priced stamps, five cent copies, free fax machine use, and other numerous services.

WMSC-FM serves as the campus radio station of Montclair State University. Located at 90.3 on the FM dial, WMSC plays a variety of the best new music for their listeners, who are located on both on- and off-campus. The station broadcasts to over 50,000 households in Northern New Jersey, and as far away as Manhattan, New York City. Their disc jockeys play a wide range of music, including mainstream alternative, ska, punk, and hardcore, as well as reggae, hip hop, Latin Music, and even gospel. WMSC also offers a request line for their listeners and is always open to all students who wish to become members.

This past year, WMSC has also participated in numerous other events held on campus, including Homecoming parade and every New Student Orientation, among others.

College Life Union Board, known simply as CLUB, serves to coordinate and encourage social, recreational, and educational activities for the student body. Their motto, "Entertainment is our business!", manifests itself through the various forms of programming they sponsor. This past year, CLUB was involved with a wide range of activities, including the Homecoming Parade, Winter Ball, and Spring Week. In addition to these larger events, CLUB sponsored trips to sporting events, such as Mets, Yankees, and Devils games, as well as trips to Great Adventure and Atlantic City. Among their other endeavors, they presented a hypnotist, horse and carriage rides, the Real Deal game show, and several comedy shows.

During Spring Week, one of the most extensive undertakings sponsored by CLUB, the organization faced a huge obstacle to overcome at the last minute. Due to a sexual assault and a shooting at the Clove Road apartments, the annual Drive-In, a highlight of Spring Week, needed to be moved from the Clove Road parking lot to the Student Center quad. As a result, the Drive-In became a "Walk-In." Despite the last minute change in plans, which resulted in hurried efforts by CLUB to inform the campus, the event was well-attended and the students enjoyed themselves. Once again, though, the students were quite thirsty, as nearly everyone had a beverage with them. (And as we all know, it wasn't just water and soda and juice in those bottles, because no one becomes drunk off of that.)

Class One Concerts has been a popular organization at MSU for years. Offering students a chance to book a concert with some of the biggest names in the industry every year, C1C has never disappointed the students of MSU. This year, president Ron Rinaldi, put together a wide variety of acts that captivated the campus. Offering everything from ska to rap, C1C is a perfect example of students giving back to the campus community. In the fall of 1997, C1C brought the Violent Femmes to MSU, along with the Toasters. The Spring of 1998 was highlighted by the "Ska Against Racism Tour", a free concert in the amphitheater.

In addition to the large shows, C1C spends a great deal of time setting up smaller concerts with local bands to entertain MSU. Ranging from unknowns to sensations, such as the Pink Floyd Tribute band, The Machine, the concerts brought to campus by C1C ensure that there will always be plenty worth listening to at MSU.

The Latin American Student Organization, known as LASO for short, serves to expose and stimulate the academic community through Latin American influences in music, art, literature, history, and cuisine. Laso addresses socio-political concerns and strives to provide a better understanding and acceptance of the Latin American culture. Their motto, "En la unidad esta la fuerza," means "In unity there is strength." Founded in 1970, LASO was honored with the SGA's Class One of the Year award, this year sharing the award with OSAU.

This year, LASO hosted a variety of programming, ranging from educational lectures to a literary magazine. The latter, named "Palabras," was a new endeavor for the group, and was filled with poems, short stories, rap lyrics, and art work, in an effort to express Latino culture. In addition, LASO presented parties, dinners, and workshops. And in a philanthropic vein, LASO organized food, clothing, medicine, and water drives for the victims of Hurricanes George and Mitch and the Columbian earthquake, which wreaked havoc on Central and South America and the Caribbean.

Located in Room 113 of the Student Center Annex is Montclair State's student-run campus newspaper, orginally known as The Pelican but now known as The Montclarion. Striving to be the student voice of MSU, it publishes weekly news, opinions and ideas of the campus community. Since its first publication 70 years ago, the paper has acted as a watchdog of the students' values and of the SGA. As always, the members of this organization strove daily to make The Montclarion the leading collegiate weekly newspaper in New Jersey.

Without the daily hard work, long hours, and dedication of its editors as well as their staff of writers, this publication would not be possible. Each year, The Montclarion sends its editors to the National College Media Convention to gain valuable experience in the world of newspaper publication. This year, the Montclarion staff hit it big with its story "Following the Money Trail".

The Organization of Students for African Unity is perhaps the largest student organization on campus. With a membership of approximately 250 undergraduates, it proves to be a strong force in campus life. OSAU, as it is more commonly known, has a tradition of hosting a variety of events, ranging from parties in the Ballrooms of the Studnt Center to concerts held by its popular and talented Gospel Choir.

OSAU seels tp educate the campus of Montclair State University about African and African-American culture. The organization strives to form an appreciation and understanding of the contributions made by Africans and African-Americans in the world, by bringing to the attention of the campus the rich heritage and historic accomplishments of African-Americans.

One of the annual programs sponsored by OSAU is the celebration of Black History Month, which serves to highlight the contributions and struggles of African-Americans.

Players is one of the more visible Class One Organizations, despite having one of the smallest budgets of all Class Ones. Players offers a unique opportunity to the students at Montclair State University, as the organization provides a creative outlet for those interested in many facets of theater and theater production.

The organization differs from the Drama department in two important ways. First, the participants do not need to be Theater majors, but can major in any other field. Secondly, the organization is run by students, so the decision of what plays to produce and what performers to feature falls solely to the members of the organization.

The organization traces its roots back to 1919, when the organization began as the Dramatic Club. In 1936, the organization became "Players", under the advisement of Harold Bohn and Howard Fox. The organization can usually be found occupying room 126 of the Student Center Annex, as well as their office.

The 4 Walls/Quarterly Literary and Art Magazine is among the oldest organizations on our campus. Founded in 1928, it has continually offered to the students a variety of opportunities in the genres of art, poetry and prose. In addition to publishing two literary magazines this past year, the organization also hosted poetry readings on campus, giving aspiring poets the chance to publicly present their work. In addition, the poetry readings included readings by alumni and faculty members of the University.

Greek Life

When all the papers are done, when all the studying is finished, it's time to let off a little steam. At Montclair State University, no other aspect of Student Life fits this criteria as well as Greek Life. Whether it's a party or just hanign out with "brothers" or "sisters", Greek Life is an intergal part of the social atmosphere here at MSU.

Ranging in purpose from academic to social, Greek organizations at MSU have given back to the University like no other facet of Student Life. Through their many philanthropic activities, Greeks have endeavored to give back to the community, aiding in the growth of both their own members and the campus at large.

The Greek Council is the governing body for all Greek organizations. Thirty-nine different organizations are represented, divided into six subhouse. This year the Greek Council was lucky to have Lou Cuomo, John Brost, Elisabeth Unley and Danielle Stasik to guide them.

Sports

The crack of the bat as it connects with its round target. The clang of the rim just before the basketball swishes home. The patter of the feet of the runner trying to pass the leader as the pack rounds the last corner of the race. The grunt of the athlete as he pins his opponent to the mat for the victory. The roar of the crowd in triumph..or the silence that accompanies the agony of defeat.

Nothing has the ability to unite a campus the way sports do. While sports do not play as large a role at Montclair as they do at some other schools, they are still an important part of the University. For proof of the excitement that sports can create, one need only to attend the Homecoming football game. The stands are almost completely packed and a wave of excitement can be felt throughtout the game.

Regardless of their win-loss record, though, the athletes of Montclair State University share common traits: dedication, school spirit, and the competitive drive. These students promote the name of MSU throughout the region.

La Campana now proudly presents the past and present athletes of Montclair State.

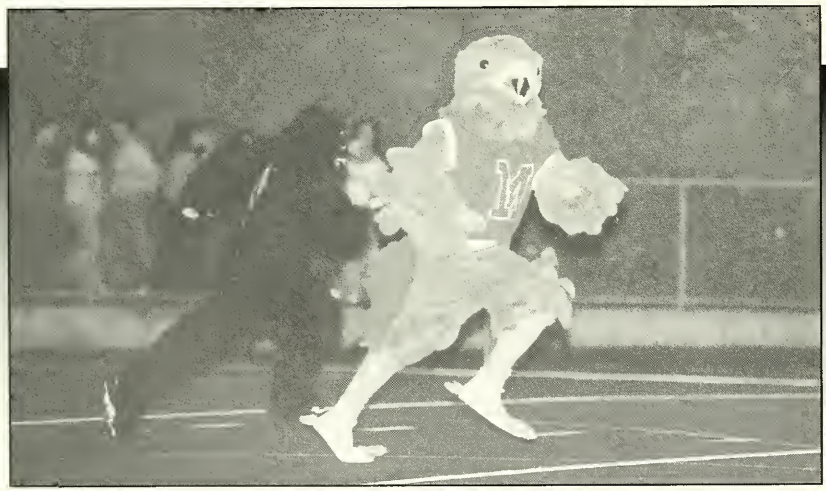
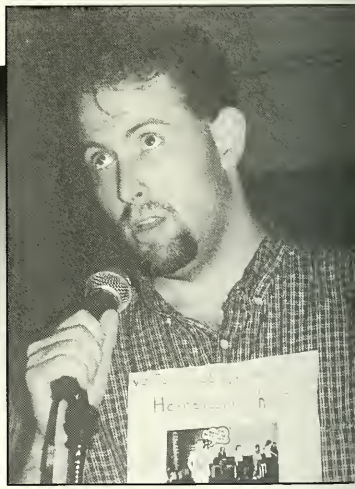
Student Life

The parties, the debates with other students, the quiet cramming in a corner of the thrid floor of the Student Center. To each of us, Studnet Life takes on a different meaning. Whatever it may or may not mean to you, though, it remains a major part of the college experience. As is often said, much more is learned outside of the classroom than within its confines. And that learning, that intrinsic part of the educational experience, is what we know as "student life."

To put a face or name or even a description to the words "student life" is nearly impossible because it means so many different things to every one of us. For some of us, the Student Government Assoication is a basic part of the college experience; for others , it is the laughter shared on the steps of the Student Center.

College would be a much less rich experience were it not for the excitement of the college campus, the thrill of learning, and the energy of being young- or at least, young at heart. And that is what we at La Campana hope we can receate on these pages.





The 1998 Homecoming celebration was finally sunny after three straight years of rain. The good weather brought high spirits to the devoted students of Montclair State University. The event was highlighted by a victory over William Paterson University at the annual football game. This year's theme, Back to the 70's, filled Valley Road with scenes from Star Wars, Vietman War, Rocky Horror, Flintstones, Chorus Line, Brady Bunch, Disco Fever, Patridge Family, and Watergate. The brothers of Theta Xi and the sisters of Sigma Delta Phi, with their interpretation of Star Wars and animated float, stole the show and clenched the victory for best float and best overall performance at the Homecoming parade.

Seniors

After four, or five or six, or however many years, we all look forward to the day when our college career is finally completed. Looking forward to our careers, while looking back on the memories, experience, and education that we recieved during our college years, we find ourselves iwth a mixture of emotions. While no doubt glad to be free of the debt and pressure that college brings, and while lokking forward to our careers or future endeavors into higher education, we usually refelct on the life we are giving up. The parties, the abilty to forgo the responsibilites of the real world, the pleasure of working with thousands of people who seek the same things we seek, and all of the other aspects of college life, will soon be gone from our lives. In its place, we feel a sense of accomplishmet for achieveing our diploma, we experience the joy of being educated, and we possess the ability to work in our chosed profession, whatever that may be.

In honor of the glory of our past and the richness of our futures, La Campana proudly present the Class of 1999.

La Campana Staff

La Campana is the oldest publication found on the campus of Montclair State. Tracing its roots to the days when our University was merely Montclair Normal School, La Campana has portrayed the campus for generations. Its name meaning "The Bell" in Spanish, the yearbook has symbolized Montclair State just as the Spanish-architecture and bell of College Hall have represented the college since its inception.

After experiencing a few rocky years, the staff of La Campana saw itself undergo a revitalization this year, churning out the first on-time yearbook in more than half a decade. Despite having a small staff, and losing most of its staff members as the year progressed, the few who remained carried the load, taking on additional roles as needed. La Campana looks to build on the success of this past year, continuing its tradition of being the lasting symbol of Montclair State that our graduates take with them.
